

SENSORY SCALES

What is the color
of a whisper?

Gray—

between the thick
black of speech

and the empty
white of silence.

What is the sound
of walking?

A falling leaf—

between the sharp
snap of a sprint

and the soft
hum of stillness.

What is the texture
of floating?

A weathered palm—

between the smooth
freedom of flight

and the rough
sandpaper of diving deep.